User Stories

As Martha, I want access to easy to understand datasets, so that we can discuss possible measures against school shootings and gun violence in general.

As Cindy, I want to find a data set that is relevant to my research topic, so that I can incorporate the data into my research.

As Cindy, I want access to visual data to, so that I can visually analyze trends in order to present it in front of my classes.

As a right-leaning politician, I want to be able to make a visual chart out of a set of specific incidents, so that I can make a diagram that backs up my views on gun violence.

As a security officer at a public school, I would like to have access to detailed reports of each incident, so that I may propose security protocols that prevent specific situations from occurring.

As a gun rights activist, I want more available information pertaining to each individual incident, so that I can have access to multiple sources with more descriptive information.

As a guns rights activist, I want to be able to refine my search in terms of certain types of weapons, so that I may protest against the use of commonly used weapons.

As a student, I want organized data and easy to export data, so that I can use it for my research paper.

As a student, I want easy to browse data of school shooting, so that I might answer my probing questions about the current situations.

As a parent looking for a new home, I want to be able to refine my search via area so that I can choose a safe place for my kids to go to school.